A227	Of all the combination treatments, this remains the most effective.		nd	Sydney, NSW, Australia	AIDS Council of New South Wales (ACON)	Dark blue monochrome poster. Main image is photo of an incomplete jigsaw puzzle spelling out the title/message and offering the image of condom + lube. More info printed on white strip across the bottom. Additional text: "Anti-viral drugs in various combinations are a major step forward in the treatment of HIV and AIDS, but only for some people - they don't work for everybody. The success of treatments is still highly dependent on following dosage instructions to the letter. For some people, the side-effects can be severe. And long term, some of the effects are still unknown. While it's clear these treatments are successful in reducing the activity of HIV in most people, it's still far from clear that they can eliminate the virus from the body altogether. Some people may also have been infected with strains of HIV which are already drug resistant, which means some treatments may be less effective. The fact remains there is still no cure for HIV/AIDS. So every time you have sex, share the responsibility with your partner, and unless you do "Talk, Test, Test, Trust", use the safest combination available, a condom and lube. It's your life, take charge."	60 x 42	HIV/AIDS; Education

B034	In some parts of the world, governments kill queers, in Australia we make them kill themselves		nd	Australia	National Union of Students (NUS)	Black illustration of a man inside bars: and another of a hangman's noose. Print black on orange : white block at bottom with NUS information. Additional text: "Although in Australia homosexuality has been decriminalised, numerous studies have shown that queer people are still at greater risk of committing acts of self harm or suicide than others. This is due to social structures and social norms, such as homophobia, capitalism and the nuclear family. In Australia, governments make the problem worse by refusing to fund suicide prevention programs, also access to welfare benefits like youth allowance is made difficult which often forces queer people to remain in dangerous environments for economic reasons. People around the world need to stand up against any government that kills queers directly or indirectly. Get involved in your queer collective to find out how to fight back against homophobia."	42 x 60	Legal Rights; Suicide; Homophobia

Top is a boxed area (thin black line frame) with the limited edition details. The bottom section is given over to reprinting the Age article. Additional text: "Limited edition number: 27/100. Without their support we would still be in the moral dark ages. The Victorian Branch of Campaign Against Moral Persecution - i.e., Society Five - has always relied on it's membership to keep going. And we have kept going. It is also a vote of confidence in the future - a future shared together in the conviction that united, we need never go back." When we began in 1971, things were a lot different. Yet while much has changed - public awareness, the law, the gay scene itself - much remains the same. Society Five's "Gayline" gets over a thousand calls a month. We are sometimes inundated by requests for information. ... ten years later, we're still here, working in much the same way. Monday July 7: 6.30pm, Dandenong Town Hall, Lonsdale Street, Dandenong. Friday July 18: 6pm, South Barwon Civic Centre, cnr Reynolds Road & Princes Highway (Hanson will be speaking at this meeting). National Action is an extreme right wing organisation - racist, anti-Semitic and homophobic. It has opened a bookshop in Fawkner as a base from which it hopes to recruit and spread its ideas. They are trying to link up with ... One Nation Party to be it's Stormtroopers. The Campaign Against Nazis (CAN), a broad coalition of groups and individuals, is working to close the shop. Queer Action is proud to be part of that campaign. National action flaunts its homophobia. In a recent leaflet circulated in Fawkner, it accused CAN of being full of homosexuals, Jewish lesbians, and people from AIDS-ridden inner suburbs. They accused CAN of supporting gay rights, of coming to Fawkner to recruit young people into homosexual groups, of selling drugs, of supporting sex education in schools - all of these equally awful in their eyes. .... Queer Action is an organisation of people committed to queer visibility in a straight world, and to diversity in the queer community. Fighting Nazis and bigoted ideas is part of that commitment." Everything else is good, except we can't stabilise my viral load. At first I thought 'well, how come mine's not getting down to undetectable levels?' And that worried me. Then I thought 'well maybe these drugs just work better for some people than others' and I should try not to worry about it. I'd still like to get my viral load down to as low as possible, so now I'm on a 5 drug regime. It's been difficult to get used to, but I bought myself a pill box to help me get into the habit. My quality of life has improved immensley. I can do things now that I couldn't... wouldn't dream of doing 18 months ago. Sixteen years of having the disease and I'm still here.
