

East Melbourne

2017 History Walk Guide to Places and Acknowledgments

☆ indicates stopping points

Total distance is about 2 Km

ALGA in 2017

If volunteering for ALGA interests you, we'd love to hear from you. All skills welcome ... archiving, IT, fundraising, promotions, design, data entry, admin ... We try to match up volunteers with projects that fit their interests and time available. See details on back cover.

Start Old Treasury Building 20 Spring Street

Stop 1

Women's Suffrage Memorial Macarthur Street, Burston Reserve

Stop 2

Tasma Terrace 6 Parliament Place

Stop 3

St Patrick's and the Flowerpot Cathedral Place

Stop 4 Lansdowne Street

Stop 5a and 5b

The Fitzroy Gardens and the FairiesTree Wellington Parade

Stop 6 Clarendon Street

Stop 7 Little Parndon 159 Gipps Street

Stop 8 Powlett Street

Stop 9 Gipps Street again

Stop 10 Fairhill 154 Hotham Street

Thank-you ... to the State Library of Victoria for permission to reprint photos on pages 1,2, 3 and 4.

Front page graphics: The Fairies Tree, Fitzroy Gardens, Graham Willett, January 2017; badge from ALGA's collection.

Start: Old Treasury Building Steps 20 Spring Street

From here we get a good overview of the queer history of Australia. Parliament, with its laws stretching back to Henry VIII; Alcaston House, site of the police persecution of Dr Storer; the site of Prompt Corner where Melbourne's camps gathered for some rest and recreation. And on these steps ACTUP stages it first die-in, protesting lack of government action on AIDS.

Dr Robert Vivian Storer, Truth's Sydney edition Sunday 19th June 1938 p19

Stop 1: Women's Suffrage Memorial Macarthur Street, Burston Reserve

When women threw themselves into the campaign to get the vote, it was inevitable that some of them would be women who loved women. Mary Fullerton and Mabel Singleton met as fighters for the suffrage, and lived as lovers for the rest of their lives.

Cover of Passionate Friends: Mary Fullerton, Mabel Singleton and Miles Franklin by Sylvia Martin (London: Onlywomen Press, 2001). Left to right (clockwise): Mary Fullerton, Mabel Singleton (top), Miles Franklin.

Stop 2: Tasma Terrace 6 Parliament Place

Tasma Terrace was once a boarding house. Among its residents in the 1930s was a Mr. John Law, described by one of his admirers as 'by far the most handsome man in the place', whose friend Joe McCudden. was a cheerful, friendly soul who everyone liked, except when ...

John Law - Table Talk (Melbourne) 20 July 1933

Stop 3: St Patrick's and the Flowerpot Cathedral Place

Two less likely neighbours it would be hard to imagine. St Patrick's Cathedral, bastion of the Catholic Church in Victoria and, until recently, the seat of Cardinal Pell. A source of bitter homophobia, and a target of protest. And the Flowerpot – a charming garden bed that harbours a deep secret.

Photo by Graham Willett, 2017 - St Patricks and the Flowerpot

Stop 4: Lansdowne Street

The strange case of Marks and Feeney gripped Melbourne in 1872. Murder? Suicide gone wrong? Friends? Lovers? A chance to speculate about what we can know and what we can't.

Photo Charles Marks and Edward Feeney by Davies & Co. Photo from State Library of Victoria, H96 160/2739

Stop 5a: The Fitzroy Gardens Wellington Parade

The Garden State. Free Entertainment in Public Places – Melbourne has always prided itself on its parks and gardens. But we are not all straight in the garden state – or even in East Melbourne. A pause to think about: why East Melbourne?

Harvey, John Henry 1855-1938, 'Fitzroy Gardens', Date(s) of creation: [ca. 1890-ca. 1910], Reproduction rights owned by the State Library of Victoria, Accession No: H24899

Stop 5b: The Fairies Tree

Do we really need to explain? Fairies Tree: photo by Graham Willett, 2017

Stop 6: Clarendon Street

Out of the gardens and into the streets. Bishopscourt – the grand mansion that has long been home to the Anglican Archbishops of Melbourne. But who is that figure in full drag running out of the driveway and into the Fitzroy Gardens?

Max du Barrie Arts Ball, Melb, 1951 – photo courtesy Noel Tovey

Stop 7: Little Parndon 159 Gipps Street

The home of many notable Melbournians including Lord Casey, Viceroy of Bengal, Minister in the Menzies government, Governor-General – and his much, much more interesting wife, Maie: writer, aviator, urban conservationist. Maie had two very close female companions over the years – including an artist described by fellow students as 'our resident lesbian'.

Chase (Photographer) (1940). 'Portrait of Maie Casey', Washington, United States ca. 1941. http://trove.nla.gov.au/version/41282686

Stop 8: Powlett Street

John Lempriere Irvine was a celebrity sportsman in late 19th century Melbourne until he fell foul of the law. Twice. At one point he lived in Powlett Street, and here we reflect upon his rise and mysterious fall.

John Irvine, Table Talk (Melbourne) 20 July 1933

Stop 9: Gipps Street (again!)

Freddie Asmussen: openly flamboyant at a time when that was risky, Freddie's love of extravagance stretched well beyond his job as head of display at Myer's. His various homes were a kaleidoscopic series of extravagances. Let's celebrate such passion.

State Library of Victoria, H39186 LTA 775

Stop 10: Fairhill

Hotham Street, East Melbourne

The home for many years of William Johnson and a man variously described as his colleague, companion and assistant, today it is a house museum celebrating Johnson's collection of vast amounts of, well, stuff. Johnson began his working life as a window dresser at Buckley and Nunn. Need we say more? (We probably will.)

Photo courtesy Johnson Collection

East Melbourne

History Walk on Sunday 23 January 2017

was conducted by Graham Willett and Wayne Murdoch, with Gary Jaynes, Kathy Sport and Helen Pausacker. Gary Jaynes, Helen Pausacker and Graham Willett produced this programme. This is the Australian Lesbian and Gay Archives' 23rd History Walk of Melbourne.

